Sekhukhune District welcomes the festive season

The year 2012 is full of activities, had its own challenges and challenges for different people and organisations. For others, it was a good year. Full of achievements and blessings. For others it was a year full of challenges and setbacks. It is the opportunity for organisations that who succeeded in their various endeavours such as business, academics, sports and further encourage them to achieve more going forward into the New Year. It is also a year to take the responsibility to encourage those who struggled to overcome their obstacles and aspirations under the New Year. We are particularly set commending words to those who set their hearts on it 2012. We are your best wishes.

Above all the year 2012 will be remembered as the year of unity. As the year we worked closely hand in hand to realize similar delivery to our people, working together, we see individual more. It is really encouraging to see our sector partners such as traditional leaders, business partners, and ordinary citizens working hand in hand with government for the address developmental issues. We value our partnership obligation of the fact that development needs participation of all social partners. We will continue to address the ongoing loss of life on our roads, and our messages in 2013 will be to ensure that we respond to road users to obey and observe all the rules involving speed limits. Safety definitely is the number of instances of absence or refusal for people to work during the festive season. It is important to ensure that this absence is directed, since we can learn our lessons from it. We are not here to condemn, murder, punish and renege within our communities. We are not here to punish and threaten those who do not work during the festive season. We are here to support and encourage them to work during the festive season. We are here to support and encourage them to work during the festive season. We are here to support and encourage them to work during the festive season.
